Anderson joins Rykers' as schools now virtual

1 new COVID-19 death each reported in Carroll, Trimble

BY BOB DEMAREE

With more classrooms at Madison's Anderson Elementary School being impacted by positive cases of COVID-19, the school will switch to virtual learning beginning Thursday and in-person instruction scheduled to resume Monday, Nov. 29.

Ashley Schutte, communications coordinator for Madison Consolidated Schools, said that when positive cases occur in a classroom there are quarantines within that classroom to prevent spread throughout the building, but when the cases show up in multiple classrooms the better option is to go virtual.

"There are five to six classes that have been impacted" at Anderson, Schutte said, noting that with an abundance of caution, the decision was made to close the building to in-person instruction so the school can "get ahead of it" and prevent additional spread of COVID-19 within the Anderson building.

With the Thanksgiving holiday break scheduled for Wednesday, Nov. 24 through Friday, Nov. 26, Anderson students will only miss four days of in-person instruction. The hope is that such a break will reduce the spread of COVID.

Rykers' Ridge Elementary is also currently closed to in-person instruction due to COVID-19 with students at that school also scheduled to return to the building Monday, Nov. 29.

Residents ponder future of Main Street at open house

BY BOB DEMAREE

When the City of Madison assumed control of State Road 62 west of Jefferson Street from the state, it opened numerous possibilities for the city's Main Street that previously did not exist while under state jurisdiction. On Monday, city officials held an open house to invite citizens to help frame the discussion on what a long-term re-envisioning of the city's Main Street should involve.

Representatives of Ratio Architects, the design consultant for the project, and Jacobi Toombs and Lanz, the project engineers, both were on hand with John Jackson, principal and director of Landscape Architecture and Urban Design for Ratio Architects, leading the presentation, in which input was sought from city residents.

Previously under the control of the state and the Indiana Department of Transportation, the roadway that begins at Jefferson Street and ends on the former State Road 56 at the top of Hanover Hill is now all Madison's to upkeep but also reinvent.

"When INDOT relinquishes a right-of-way, it means the community has more of an opportunity to say how they want that corridor," said Jackson, who noted that INDOT has requirements, standards and regulations for roadways under its control that had be maintained on Main Street while it was under state ownership.

Residents browse through the many architectural drawings and schematics that were displayed for public review and comment at Brown Gym during Monday's meeting on Main Street.

MadLove puts musical spin on reimagined restaurant

CHARLIE ROHLFING
CHARLIE'S BEAT

Before I get into my article this week about the fine folks who just opened MadLove restaurant where the old Crystal and Jules used to be, I want to talk about a phenomenon in live music I call the "lightning strike moment."

The thing about a lightning strike is you never know when it's going to happen, but you know it will be powerful and it's going to shake you to your core. That's what it feels like when you go to a live music event with absolutely no idea what to expect and the music knocks you off your feet.

That's exactly what happened to me last Saturday night. I had to oversee a music show at Red Bicycle Hall (I'm a partner there) for a band I'd never heard of called Cody Lee Meese and the Poor Excuses. A solo act named Nolan Taylor was opening. So I unlocked the doors and turned on the lights and helped the band get set up and stocked the bar.

Oak Hill neighborhood targeted for yard-to-yard paving, sidewalks

BY MARK CAMPBELL

When the City of Madison spends a recently awarded $957,000 Indiana Community Crossings grant next spring — one requiring a match of the same amount from the city for about $1.8 million overall — the plan will be to use data collected during recent street and sidewalk studies to target the area most in need of improvement.

That means the Oak Hill neighborhood on Madison's hilltop is in store for yard-to-yard street improvements with newly paved streets, curbs and gutters as well as ADA-approved sidewalks and crosswalks.

Deputy Mayor Mindy McGee detailed the project at Tuesday's Madison City Council meeting, noting that since Community Crossings allows grant recipients to not only address streets but also sidewalks, the data collected in a citywide sidewalk study allows Madison to target spending the grant money in more focused manner.

McGee said if contractors are already in an area doing paving, they can more efficiently do the curbs and vice versa. By aligning areas that need both, the city can get the most impact for its funding and by targeting the worst areas it can make a bigger impact by upgrading neighborhoods yard-to-yard at one time.

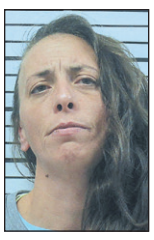
Multiple felony charges filed in 4 unrelated arrests

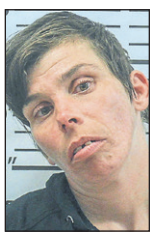
BY THE COURIER STAFF

Joshua D. Ferguson

Dustin Hardebeck



Ashley N. Walters



Cassandra Lynn Webster

A Madison Police Officer who was in the process of executing a traffic stop was pulled several feet by a vehicle Saturday after the driver attempted to flee the scene on Lanier Drive near Duffy Avenue.

The driver, Joshua D. Ferguson, 39, Madison, initially complied with Madison Patrolmen Curtis Shelpman and Josh Nolan, but with Nolan standing at the driver's door, Ferguson fled the scene and as his vehicle pulled away Nolan was pulled several feet by the vehicle.

Nolan was able to maintain his balance and was not injured and a vehicle pursuit ensued with Ferguson fleeing north on State Road 7. In the vicinity of Boyd Road, Ferguson's vehicle left the roadway and became stuck in a field with Ferguson then fleeing on foot before officers were able to take him into custody without further incident.

Ferguson faces preliminary charges of Possession of Methamphetamine, Resisting Law Enforcement-Vehicle and Criminal Recklessness, all Level 6 felonies as well as Resisting Law Enforcement-Fleeing on Foot and Leaving the Scene of an Accident, both Class A misdemeanors and Possession of Paraphernalia, a Class C misdemeanor. Ferguson is being held in the Jefferson County Jail without bond.

Madison Police were assisted on the call by the Jefferson County Sheriff's Department.

On Sunday, a report of shoplifting at the Madison Walmart, 567 Ivy Tech Drive, led to the arrest of Dustin Howard Hardebeck, Lexington, Indiana, for the alleged theft, along with additional drug charges after officers found methamphetamine, marijuana and paraphernalia associated with the use of narcotics in his possession.

Patrolman Nolan led the investigation and Hardebeck faces charges of Possession of Methamphetamine and Possession of a Syringe, both Level 6 felonies; Theft, a Class A misdemeanor; and Possession of Marijuana and Possession of Paraphernalia, both Class B misdemeanors. Hardebeck is being held in the Jefferson County Jail without bond

Elsewhere on Sunday, Madison Police responded to a person creating a disturbance at Circle K, 224 East Second Street, in downtown Madison.

The suspect, Ashley N. Walters, 35, North Vernon, was found to be acting disorderly upon arrival, and continued to yell after being given a disorderly conduct warning.

Patrolman Shelpman attempted to take Walters into custody, but she physically resisted before finally being detained and subdued. As a result of that resistance, Shelpman sustained an ankle injury.

Walters faces preliminary charges of Battery against a Public Official, a Level 5 felony; Possession of a Syringe, a Level 6 felony; Resisting Law Enforcement, a Class A misdemeanor and Disorderly Conduct and False Informing, both Class B misdemeanors. Walters is being held at the Jefferson County Jail on a $5,000 cash bond. MPD Capt. Season Jackson assisted with the arrest.

On Friday at approximately 6:10 p.m., Patrolman Nolan took into custody Cassandra L. Webster, 39, Madison, on an active bond revocation warrant. During a subsequent search of her property, officers located methamphetamine and paraphernalia associated with the use of narcotics.

Webster's active revocation warrants include Residential Entry, a Level 6 felony; Possession of Marijuana, a Class B misdemeanor; and Possession of Paraphernalia, a Class C misdemeanor. Webster is being held in the Jefferson County Jail on a $5,000 cash bond.

Meanwhile, the death toll due to COVID-19 has increased in both Trimble and Carroll counties with each recording one new death, according to information from the Kentucky Department of Public Health.

Carroll's overall total during the pandemic is now 29 while Trimble is at 18. Carroll's total positive cases during the pandemic is now at 1,983 or an increase of 13 since Monday. Trimble's total is now 1,286 for an increase of 11 since Monday. Carroll's positivity rate is 3.94% while Trimble's is 20.93%. Incidence rates put both counties in the "Red" metric for high spread.

Jefferson County, still in the "Orange" metric for medium to high spread, went into the week seemingly with the hope of dropping down to "Yellow" but a steady increase in positive cases this week has prevented that from happening. Since Monday, there have been 59 new positive cases of COVID-19 with 41 of those coming in the last day. The county's overall total is now 5,470 with the infection metric now at 2.5 after being at 1.5 just two days ago. Jefferson County's positivity rate is 12.7% with an overall death toll of 102.

Switzerland County remains in "Yellow" for moderate community spread and a 1.0 in terms of infection metric. Switzerland County's overall positive cases stands at 1,406, an increase of 13 since Monday. The county's positivity rate is 5.6% with a death toll of 12.

On Wednesday, Indiana had 3,481 new positive cases of COVID-19 in the last day, lifting the state's overall total to 1,061,761. Indiana had 41 new deaths, bringing the death toll during the pandemic to 16,618.

In Kentucky, there were 1,821 new positive cases, bringing the overall total to 764,686. Kentucky had 38 more deaths, bringing the overall death toll to 10,318.

On Wednesday, Kentucky Gov. Andy Beshear signed an executive order that qualifies every person 18 years old or older and living or working in the commonwealth to get a COVID-19 vaccination booster six months after their second dose of Moderna or Pfizer COVID-19 vaccines, or two months after a single-dose of Johnson & Johnson COVID-19 vaccine.

Beshear said Kentucky was seeing declines in COVID-19 case numbers and the test positivity rate for many weeks, but recently those numbers have begun to plateau or even slightly increase.

"We are moving into the amazing holiday season with Thanksgiving, Christmas and other gatherings, which unfortunately are especially risky for COVID-19 being able to spread," said Beshear. "Because of that, its more important than ever that we get people vaccinated and get people their boosters to push their immunity up to the highest levels, because over time that immunity wanes."

The Jefferson County Health Department will be hosting an evening COVID vaccine clinic on Thursday from 3 p.m.-6 p.m. Please call 812 273-1942 to schedule an appointment. JCHD also continues to provide COVID vaccines and booster vaccines for all those that are eligible Monday through Friday 9 a.m.-3 p.m.

And then I was blown away! Nolan Taylor was so powerful and evocative, he literally had people choking back tears by the end of his set. And Cody Lee Meese swaggered up to the mic with a dynamic rock groove that had the audience cheering from the first song. It was one of the best rock/country shows I've ever seen, and I've seen a LOT of them over the years.

Which brings me to my point. You can't predict when the magical musical lightning will strike, but one thing is certain. You have to be there. You have to get up from watching Netflix on a Saturday night and put on pants with a belt and round up a few friends and go out.

You have to take a chance on a band you've never heard of. And every now and then you'll get lucky. You'll experience a show that will stick with you for the rest of your life. And maybe you'll have a brand new favorite band. I think maybe I do. Look for Cody and the boys back at Red Bicycle Hall sometime soon.

But on to this week's topic, Kim and Jeff Kennard, the proprietors of the brand new MadLove restaurant on West Main Street. As I write this they've been open just over one week, and the response has been phenomenal.

"Not only from the many patrons who have come to dine with us," explains Jeff, "but other business owners like the Heitz's, the mayor, the police, the neighbors. Everybody wants to see us succeed, and that means so much to us. We feel very welcome."

When you approach the restaurant, even before you enter, the emphasis on music is unmistakable. There is music playing through speakers out on the sidewalk, and when you get inside every wall surface is covered with decor and memorabilia related to musc.

"Music is obviously very important to us," says Kim. "Jeff has been a musician his whole life ... we actually met back in the late 80s when I went to see his rock band play. All the guitars you see hanging on the walls are actually his."

"One of the exciting things about moving to Madison is the music scene here," continues Jeff. "It's my hope, as soon as we get the restaurant running smoothly and I get some free time, I want to get involved with some of the other musicians in town, maybe even join a band.

"The other thing we hope to do, probably after the winter season when it starts to warm up again, is start having live music on our back patio. In the meantime, I talked with Rob Houze and he said he can tuck a little jazz duo into the corner of our main room, so we hope to do that soon.

"The talent is unstoppable in this town. Michael Fortunato and Amy Noel are amazing. And Brent and Catherine Evans are so good, aren't they?! We're glad to be here, we're happy to be up and running finally, and we look forward to being a vibrant part of the music scene, very soon."

HOT TIP OF THE WEEK

If you are looking for a sing-a-long good time, two of the best rock cover bands in the region will be playing at Mad Paddle this weekend — Doctors Band on Friday and The Rumors on Saturday. There's a fun band playing the Senior Dance at the Brown Gym on Friday called Band of Brothers. It's a kind of Hewitt family affair, with dad Gary, two sons Darryl and Mike, plus Chuck Blair. And finally, looking ahead to next Wednesday, the night before Thanksgiving, you might want to put the Central Hotel on your calendar. The venerable band Power Plant will be rocking the joint, and it's a perfect "dive bar" experience to share with your out of town guests.

Charlie Rohlfing is a retired advertising man and partner in The Red Bicycle Hall music venue. Look for his distinctive fedora bobbing above the crowd, anywhere live local music is happening.

Hanover Parks continues holiday plans

BY BOB DEMAREE

Hanover is gearing up for its first Hanover Tinsel Twinkle Trail with preparations now underway in decorating the Community Building and Hanover Community Park.

At Tuesday's Hanover Park Board meeting, Hanover Parks Director Scott Davidson updated about the events along with town council member Debbie Kroger, coordinator of many of the activities, and Tami Hagemier, who through Lanthier Winery is providing decorations.

"There's lots done and there's lots more to do," said Davidson on preparation to turn on the lights for the Hanover Tinsel Twinkle Trail the day after Thanksgiving.

On Saturday, Dec. 4, there will be a craft fair from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at both the Community Building and the Southwestern Elementary School cafeteria, which is being called the Mistletoe Market.

On Friday, Dec. 17-18, from 6-8 p.m., there will be the Holly Jolly Santa Celebration. "We invite everybody from Jefferson County and the region to make Hanover part of their holiday Christmas experience this year," said Davidson, who noted there will be a live nativity scene, carolers and costume characters. "It's going to be a great family atmosphere out here at the park."

One of the activities that weekend is the Sugar Plum Bake-Off, which is being coordinated by Meg Bramer. Bakers are invited to compete for a first prize of $250, second prize of $150 and third prize of $100 in categorie including holiday candy, cookie and decorated cookie. Winners will be announced at 6:30 p.m. on Friday, Dec. 17.

Bake-off entries should be submitted to the Bake-Off committee at the Hanover Community Building on Thursday, Dec. 16, from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. and Friday, Dec. 17, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Judging will begin Friday, Dec. 17, and continue until all entries have been judged.

There will be a silent auction of the winning treats and a bake sale featuring treats by competing bakers to benefit the Hanover Senior Citizens and the Tinsel Twinkle Trail. Treats will be $3 per half dozen and $5 per dozen. Persons with questions should email Davidson at sdavidson@townofhanover.net or call 812-806-1042. Entry forms are available at the Hanover Town Hall or by visiting the county website at www.jeffersoncounty.gov.

There are also plans for a Bicycle Blessings giveaway for needy children. "We are hoping to come up with at least 100 bikes," said Kroger, who said each bike will come with a helmet. "That's our goal the first year. There are a lot kids that need a bike," noting it's a great form of exercise for youth, "and a lot cannot afford it."

Hagemier said they have reached out for the giveaway to Southwestern students in grades 1-5, but there have also been requests from Deputy, Canaan and Rykers' Ridge elementary schools about participating.

"It depends on how much excitement the community has" through the number of bicycles that are available. "Honestly, it's one of the greatest things to happen in the holiday season in Jefferson County in awhile. There's just a lot of excitement and kindness around that."

Children will pick up the bikes during the Holly Jolly Santa Celebration, but Hagemier said they have discussed with Hanover Township Fire Department the possibility of delivering bikes to the home of children who aren't able to pick them up — with Santa on the fire truck. "We could probably do that in Hanover but we haven't talked with other fire departments," said Hagemier, who wasn't sure if that would be possible outside of Hanover.

In other business:

- Davidson said 70 girls have signed up for kindergarten through Sixth grade basketball. He said workouts started last week with team practices beginning this week. Games will run through the end of January.
- Davidson said it has now officially been one year since he started as parks director at Hanover. "Thank you for the opportunity. We're going to keep growing and working together. It's not just me, it's a great team effort," he said.

FUTURE

"You now have the ability to chart a different future for Main Street," said Jackson, who said one focus of the work is "how do we make it a more pedestrian-friendly space?" He noted Main Street will continue to carry a lot of cars, but there are still ways to make it safer and gracious to pedestrians.

Jackson said the project will also include infrastructure improvement to Main Street such as replacing sidewalks and paving, but also what lies underground like the city's aging infrastructure of sewers and water lines. "That's part of the master plan to try to accommodate all of that," he said.

Jackson said the plan for Main Street includes new curbs and sidewalks while maintaining the existing character and providing infrastructure that's going to last for a long time. He described developing street corners that are more expanded, along with possibly hanging traffic signals on mast arms instead of on wires dangling over the street. Additionally, Jackson suggested the project could involve replacing all the storm sewers along the city-owned corridor of Main Street to ensure proper water flow to prevent standing water along curbs.

Another possibility suggested involves the far west end of Main Street where the sidewalk ends in front of some residences. Jackson proposed consideration of putting sidewalks there along with the proposition of extending pedestrian walkways beyond that at the Crooked Creek bridge with a boardwalk that would provide access to the Heritage Trail at Clifford Hollow Road near the south entrance of Clifty Falls State Park.

"We've got ideas we feel good about, but it's not done," said Jackson, who wanted input from the community to gather residents' thoughts about the possibilities Ratio is suggesting.

He also talked about traffic calming strategies on Main Street from Broadway Street to the west end bridge over the railroad. That section of Main Street long had been four lanes but is just recently three lanes with one lane each direction and a turning lane in the middle. Jackson referred to that traffic calming"experiment" as "urban interventionism" that it is creating a new experience in which the community will decide if it's working.

"If people think it doesn't work, or people hate it, it's just paint," Deputy Mayor Mindy McGee added, noting it can be changed back, but so far she said she's received good feedback about the changes on Main Street.

Madison Mayor Bob Courtney said time is needed to decide if the current traffic calming is successful. "It's 2026 before we do the next Main Street paving project" when the city receives a $5 million grant from the Federal Highway Administration through the Indiana Department of Transportation for work on Main Street. Courtney said between now and then the city will evaluate all the data on whether the current traffic calming plan works and then use that data to form a plan for the future.

"After some time passes, it would be fair to come back and measure to see what impact it has actually had." He said noting "anecdotally everyone who has approached me about it likes it" and the data he's received has indicated it would be a safer way to manage traffic on Main Street. "Anecdotally, it's working exactly the way as we hoped it would."

Bob Demaree

John Jackson, principal and director of Landscape Architecture and Urban Design for Ratio Architects, explains the process involved in a current study to reinvision Madison's Main Street for the future.

However, downtown resident John Staicer noted that "people generally say good things, they don't want to say bad things. I have had people come up to me and complain to me about Main Street, and I don't have anything to do with that, but I want I to be able to." Stacier suggested telling people where to send their comments and Courtney responded by asking residents to submit their thoughts about the project at streetsec@madison-in.gov.

Staicer also noted that since the traffic changes on Main Street "a lot of people are avoiding Main Street as a thoroughfare just because it's much slower to go down," which he said is causing more traffic to divert onto Second and Third streets. "That's one of my concerns," he said. "I'm not saying I'm against" what's been done on Main Street, but perhaps adjustments need to be made, such as changing the traffic light sequencing. "That's one of my concerns that traffic be able to move smoothly and slowly down Main Street, and not having to be stopping at every light."

Nathan Montoya suggested speed bumps or speed dips as a possible solution to slowing traffic on Second and Third streets and as a means "to discourage using that as an alternative race track."

McGee said the city plans to conduct traffic counting on First, Second and Third streets to "get an idea what the traffic looks like." She also noted a plan to address enforcement of vehicles to follow speed limits on the side streets and Main Street.

Madison Police Chief John Wallace said vehicle speed is a priority and two police officers will be dedicated to monitoring traffic, particularly during the peak traffic times, and city police will place greater emphasis on traffic enforcement.

Teresa Adler expressed concern on how the project will impact trees along Main Street. Adler, who lives on the east end of Madison, said they were "assured repeatedly that the trees would be respected" in the work that Indiana Department of Transportation did on the new approach from the Milton-Madison Bridge into Madison, but the project ultimately resulted in the state taking out trees on Main Street. "When you talk about cultural integrity, I would hope the changes that you're talking about would accommodate that fact that there are mature trees and that's part of the charm of Main Street."

Adler noted that she is a landscape architect, and while it's a "nice idea" to have trees that match and are the same size, "that's not Madison."

Jackson agreed, noting the city has many trees that should be preserved and protected but some that could also be replaced by better varieties.

"There's an amazing oak tree" at Main and Mulberry, Jackson said. "I can't imagine taking that tree out because that's part of the charm of a community like this."

However, he said there are a number of Bradford pear trees — although decorative a known invasive species — that might be replaced with other trees that would be "stronger in the long run. So we've talked about fewer trees, keeping those special trees and the trees we do put in, let's budget for structural soil so we can give these trees a chance for lasting longer than the five-year average life span of an urban tree."

One question raised was about where the money will come from for the Main Street work.

"What a plan like this does is it puts a community in a position to get major funding for these kinds of things," Jackson said. "The coordinated and the more inclusive and visionary a plan is, the more money tends to become available from the kinds of places that offer it."

Courtney agreed, noting the community needs a long-range vision to be able to capitalize when funding is found.

"What we're talking about is community vision that we want to implement over the course of the next decade," the mayor said, noting that issues that have been created over half-a-century are not going to be resolved quickly. "It is an opportunity for us to re-imagine what we want for the use of space and the human experience to be."

Courtney said the massive project must also involve utility work and water management, meaning it will need to be broken up in separate pieces as the city works to pull together the funding.

"We have 60 miles of roads across our community and 30 miles of sidewalks. There's a lot of infrastructure there, and there's a lot of infrastructure that is old. That's why it takes a long time with a lot of planning," said Courtney. "It's all long-term" and funding for the project will come from grants and other sources the city will seek over the next decade in addition to the $5 million that has already been allocated to the city later this decade.

There also was considerable discussion about traffic routinely being backed up on Third Street from Lydia Middleton Elementary to Cragmont Street as parents line up their cars to drop students off in the morning and pick students up after school in the afternoon,. The issue predates the changes on Main Street, and makes it difficult to impossible for emergency vehicles in the area should they have a need to be on that portion of Third Street at that time.

"We just need to work with the school on the traffic flow around the school," said Jan Vetrhus. "You need to have that conversation before you can address Main Street."

Police Chief Wallace said there have been conversations with the school, but noted that "obviously from the concerns we're hearing here tonight that's not working." He promised the issue will be addressed and a better solution determined.

Courtney said the meeting provided a good opportunity for the city to hear "what Main Street means to you" and what traffic management issues exist. He noted the staging of vehicles at Lydia Middleton when dropping off and picking up students from the school "are all solvable issues. We just have to apply the right resources and priorities."

Sad, stuck and not sure where to start

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: I have been technically single all my life. I did have a casual long-term relationship with a man that lasted for 12 years. We were never exclusive. We would have never worked exclusively, and we both knew that.

That relationship ended badly. An unplanned pregnancy resulted in a painful miscarriage that required surgery. Not only was it physically painful but the emotional toll of losing my unborn baby was immeasurable. My "partner" completely abandoned me during that time and never acknowledged my pain or grief afterward.

It took about three years for me to not walk around with a cloud of misery hanging over me constantly. I developed a fear of dating any man and giving him the potential to hurt me like this again.

I decided I would throw myself into my career and work hard at rising through the ranks, becoming as successful as possible, and trying to achieve some self-esteem and happiness that way.

Unfortunately, my plan has not played out. Although I do work hard and strive for perfection, this has rubbed some people within my company the wrong way. I've been held back from promotions many times, and after 20 years with the same employer, it seems I am doomed to stay where I am and never move forward.

This has tapped into the feeling of low self-esteem that started after my miscarriage, and I feel like I am forever in a dark place again. I recognize that I am angry all the time and feel an overwhelming amount of sadness. Even though I recognize this, I am having a hard time breaking free and exploring other career opportunities, and the thought of leaving my company literally breaks my heart.

I don't know how to get over my fear of leaving my comfort zone, even though I know deep down it is what would be best for me. I feel like I am self-sabotaging, and I've hit a wall that I don't know how to break through. I also feel like I am unconsciously sending a message that it is OK to treat me badly.

Any advice on how to build my confidence back and truly leap toward what I believe I deserve? — Self-Stuck

Dear Self-Stuck: Instead of viewing your past as something that has beaten you down, look at it as proof of your strength. You were able to bounce back from a breakup, a miscarriage and a medical emergency all by yourself.

Now that you're back on your feet, you have some choices to make: Do you want the fear of loss to stop you from ever finding love? Do you want to stay trapped in a stagnant career where your hard work is not appreciated?

Your letter alone tells me the answer is no. Change is scary, but if you are not satisfied with the current state of your life, then it is absolutely necessary.

You don't have to go through it alone, nor should you. Reach out to friends and family members; get involved in a local organization; and seek a good therapist to help you work through the past so you can build a brighter future.

Affection is absent

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: My spouse and I have been married for over 40 years. Our children are married with children of their own. They seem happy and well-adjusted, and our whole family seems happy and healthy. I am very blessed and glad things are the way they are.

The problem: There is no love or affection in our marriage, and there hasn't been for over 20 years. We sleep in separate rooms. Despite my requests, which I don't make often, there is never any cuddling, affection, hand-holding ... nothing. When I suggest counseling, the response is that I am the one who needs counseling, that I am needy and insecure. I am in decent shape, take care of myself, have good hygiene, and do most of the housekeeping, grocery shopping, meal prep, etc.

All I want is a little attention. I am in my mid-60s, and the thought of spending the rest of my life like this really depresses me. I don't want to have an affair or get divorced, but I don't want to be lonely the rest of my life. The thought of the grandchildren going to separate homes to see Grandma and Grandpa makes me sad. Any advice would be greatly appreciated. — My Heart Aches for Attention

Dear Heart Aches: Don't let your husband convince you that being needy and wanting affection are the same thing. Props to you for communicating what you want rather than expecting him to read your mind.

It sounds like you're stuck between a rock and a hard place: You don't want a divorce, but your husband is unwilling to work toward a solution. Unfortunately, relationships are a two-way street; they require effort from both parties. If he's unwilling to make your needs one of his priorities — by at least going to couples counseling — perhaps this is not a marriage you want to be in.

Your grandchildren deserve the most joyful, affectionate version of yourself that you can give them. That's far more important than who Grandma shares a house with.

Dear Annie: I've had a girlfriend for two years. When COVID hit, she was with me 24/7. Now that COVID has died down, she does not hang out with me. I have not seen her for four weeks. She works way too much and travels with her daughter for swim.

When I tell her I love her over text, she just sends me hearts. She doesn't call or text me much.

Do you think I should end this relationship and move on? Because to be honest, I don't see it going anywhere. I have kind of lost interest with her. We were engaged, and she always wore her ring. Now she does not wear it anymore. I'm confused. Please help. — Am I an Ex?

Dear Am I: It sounds like your girlfriend/fiancee has both feet out the door. She's been gradually ghosting you, and now you're left in the dust, alone and confused.

Though puzzling for you, this is a blessing in disguise. If you don't see a future and you've lost interest in her, too, then you aren't really losing much; you're gaining an opportunity to move on and up with your life.

Make contact with this woman and officially break things off. Put it all out on the table and get the clarity you need to put your confusion to bed.

ISP Versailles Post troopers honored at ceremony

Randel Miller

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Seven troopers from the Versailles District were honored at the annual Indiana State Police Awards Ceremony on Friday, Nov. 12.

Senior Trooper Randel Miller was given an award as the 2020 Trooper of the District for the Versailles Post. In 2020, Miller excelled in criminal interdiction on roadways in the Versailles District. Miller and his K-9, Jinx, initiated numerous criminal investigations which led to the removal of illegal drugs and guns from state roadways. The cases also led to the arrest and prosecution of those who chose to be involved in criminal activities.

Lt. Paul Adams, Indiana State Police-Versailles District Commander, said Millers "work ethic and dedication to the overall mission of the Indiana State Police" has "undoubtedly made our communities safer" by pursuing those who are conducting criminal activities in our area.

Five additional troopers from the Versailles District were given awards as a result of a domestic disturbance and standout with a gun involved that occurred in November 2019 in rural Jefferson County, Indiana.

Five additional troopers from the Versailles District were given awards as a result of a domestic disturbance and standout with a gun involved that occurred in November 2019 in rural Jefferson County, Indiana.

The incident began on Nov. 23, 2019, when officers were called to a home on State Road 56 in eastern Jefferson County where a man was barricaded in the residence with a gun. During the incident, the suspect shot and wounded Master Trooper Joseph Livers, Indiana State Police-South Zone SWAT Team member. Livers was awarded a Purple Heart and Combat Action Award as a result of the incident.

Lt. Adams along with Master Troopers Rick Stockdale, Mark True and Brent Lykins, Indiana State Police-South Zone SWAT Team Members from the Versailles Post, were awarded Combat Action Awards for their actions in providing aid to Livers and removing him from the scene to receive immediate medical attention. The awards were given to the troopers for their actions of putting themselves at risk to rescue a fellow trooper.

The suspect in that incident, Wade D. Roark, 61, was recently convicted by a Jefferson County Circuit Court jury on all counts, including Attempted Murder, a Level 1 felony; Aggravated Battery, a Level 3 felony; and Battery and Criminal Recklessness, both Level 5 felonies. Roark is facing up to 46 years in the Indiana Department of Correction at a sentencing in Jefferson Circuit Court on Monday, Nov. 29.

Following a review of older incidents, Sgt. Don Gregory, Indiana State Police Commercial Vehicle Enforcement Division, was awarded a Combat Action Award for an incident that occurred in October 2002, when he was a trooper at the Indiana State Police-Seymour Post.

During the incident, Gregory responded to a rural Jackson County road in the early morning hours of Oct. 18, 2002, to assist a Jackson County Deputy in looking for suspects, possibly wanted on warrants, who abandoned a vehicle in the area. Gregory soon located one of the suspects walking along the road nearby. Upon questioning the man about whether he possibly had a gun, the man reached for a gun and made threatening statements to Gregory, who shot the suspect before the man fled into a wooded area. The suspect was soon found dead nearby while still in possession of the handgun.

Hanover holds reading of building, zoning, nuisance ordinance

BY BOB DEMAREE

On Tuesday, a couple of Madison Avenue residents complained about a residence in that neighborhood where several cans of food were being stacked in the yard, creating a strong, bad odor and attracting wild animals.

Efforts to update building and zoning — and better enforce nuisance issues — have begun in Hanover as the town council approved the first reading of an ordinance for updating building permits at its meeting on Tuesday.

Earlier this year, the town hired Rick Schnebelt for the new position of building inspector and ordinance officer, and since then the town has continued to move forward with its building and zoning along with more effectively dealing with nuisance issues in the town.

On Tuesday, a couple of Madison Avenue residents complained about a residence in that neighborhood where several cans of food were being stacked in the yard, creating a strong, bad odor and attracting wild animals.

Town Clerk-Treasurer Keith Mefford said nuisance notices have been sent to that property owner along with six others. "We're on it," he said. "It literally just started this week."

Mefford noted the process of dealing with nuisance issues is something the town has been working toward, and is now finally coming together. "It's way more difficult than it seems it should be," he said, noting that procedures must be in place for the town to legally enforce nuisance ordinances.

"We'd like to just knock on the door and tell them to quit," said council member Treva Shelton, but there's more involved, and she said the town is now working to effectively handle those issues.

Later in the meeting, the council approved the first reading of a zoning ordinance amendment in which building permit fees would be set at $25 with the building inspection fee at 12 cents per square foot. Additionally, a new commercial permit would be $50 with an inspection fee of 15 cents per square foot. Mefford said the fee changes would make Hanover more consistent with surrounding communities.

The ordinance also requires contractors to register with the town and pay a $50 registration fee due annually as well as submit an application with the name of the contractor, physical mailing address, email address, phone numbers and licenses held by the State of Indiana, and insurance information.

In other business, the council:

- Approved the purchase of playground equipment for Rainbow Park from the $24,900 grant the town received from the Community Foundation of Madison and Jefferson County. A playground set called the Grand Cove and priced at $8,468, will include a slide and two dynamic climbers. Also, a 8-foot swing set with cantilever was priced at $2,008. Mefford noted the additional cost of materials to go around the playground equipment and make it handicap accessible will be $4,200. Part of the remaining money from the grant for asphalt will allow the striping of the basketball and pickleball courts, and other extras they would like to do for improving Rainbow Park.
- Agreed to move forward with a health insurance renewal for town employees with United Healthcare. Mefford noted the renewal increase of 13.58% was more than the 10% that was budgeted, but the council decided it could adjust the budget to cover the cost increase.
- Approved a new fee structure for renting space at the Community Building effective Jan. 1, 2022, in which the rental cost will be $100 for two hours, and then $25 for each additional hour. The refundable $50 deposit and $50 charge for kitchen use will remain the same.
- Approved a request from Bill Beaudoin of Alcoholics Anonymous and Narcotics Anonymous to use the Community Building on New Year's Eve for a Clean and Sober New Year's Eve Celebration.

PAVING

"We overlaid our studies of the worst sidewalks and the worst roads in the city and matched them up to find the lowest numbers. That was Oak Hill," McGee said, noting that by tackling problems simultaneously, the neighborhood will be impacted tremendously. "It's going to be like a brand new neighborhood and the park there will be added to our park system."

Oak Hill Park is a separate problem from the streets but they city plans to tackle it just the same with a newly paved court for basketball and pickleball and other improvements to finally give families in Oak Hill a proper park.

McGee said the downside to that strategy for using grant funds is that fewer areas will benefit from the annual funding, but the areas receiving funds will be impacted in a way that will last for many years so future funds can go to other areas in similar need.

"The plan is to look at next year the same way," McGee said, noting that in the past Community Crossing grant dollars were essentially spent on patchwork throughout the city.

"This is a way to really make an impact rather than doing it street by street," Madison Mayor Bob Courtney said.

McGee said the hope is that Madison can also get more done for its money and sooner because contractors will be working in one area rather than all over the city. That allows work to be done more efficiently which could lower costs and expedite progress.

"We're looking at this as a spring project and the hope is to get on the contractors schedule early," McGee said. "Contractors like this because all of their equipment is in one area."

Meanwhile, McGee reported that the city project to extend the useful life of Main Street from Jefferson Street to the top of Hanover Hill is nearly complete. A few turn lanes and crosswalks still need to be marked in downtown Madison and crack and pothole repair continues on the hill portion.

The hope is that the $1 million project will make the road last until a $5 million federal grant is received in 2025 for the 2026 paving season when the road is scheduled to be resurfaced.

Mark Campbell

Retired Madison Police Department Capt. Dan Stephan (pictured) was recognized for his 45 years of service at Madison City Council on Tuesday night with presentations by the city and state including Indiana's second highest award, The Circle of Corydon signed by Gov. Eric Holcomb at the request of State Rep. Randy Frye (background). Although retired as a full-time officer, Stephan plans to continue working with the department part-time.

Courtney said Madison has been very fortunate in terms of state funding for road projects over the past three years with a new gateway to the city from the Ohio River Bridge and maximum allocations from Community Crossings annually.

"We've received about $20 million in projects over the last 2-1/2 to 3 years beteen INDOT and the city," Courtney said. "This $1 million next year is the maximum the state allows whether you live in Indianapolis or Madison."

He said there are still plenty of projects to do from the Main Street overhaul in 2026 to studies on how to improve downtown parking and mitigate storm water problems such as work announced at Monday's Board of Public Works to cut trees and clear culverts that are obstructing water flow on a narrow section of Crooked Creek contributing to flash flooding.

In other discussions, the council also heard concerns from local resident Bob Hartsaw related to a proposed drinking water improvement project that could mean higher water rates for local residents, many of whom are on fixed incomes and do not currently use the city's 3,000 gallon monthly minimum.

Courtney said the $15 million project cannot be done without either additional support from the entire county and city, a rate increase or both but that the project is long overdue. With most of Jefferson County getting its drinking water from Madison, deferred maintenance is putting a lot of citizens at risk should the filtration, storage or delivery system fail.

Council member Katie Rampy urged Hartsaw and others to contact members of Jefferson County Commissioners and ask them to pledge more support to the project now in order to reduce the bond issue the city will require for the work later and lower the rate increase.

"Their contribution could greatly decrease the amount of that rate increase," Rampy said.

Courtney noted Madison's Water Department pumps, treats and delivers 8 million gallons of water annually to 75% of the county on $8 million in operating costs at "close to break even" so with a $15 million project planned it's easy to see the impact that could have on water rates.

Courtney said Madison currently sells water on four tiers of which city residents pay the highest rate while rural water districts buying with volume discounts pay some of the lowest. Industries are able to negotiate rates, often as inducements. Some leveling of rates may be required.

In other business, the council approved two resolutions to transfer leftover funds from one account to another as well as another to authorize the mayor to electronically sign INDOT agreements on behalf of the city. All three were house-cleaning measures.

The council also heard the first reading of an ordinance amendment to reduce the Board of Directors membership on the City of Madison Port Authority from nine to seven members and establish guidelines for terms of office moving forward. The original ordinance dates back to 1976.

Warning: Fake Counterfeit Pills.

Beware of counterfeit pills that may look like prescription drugs, they likely contain Fentanyl.

Do not consume any pill that you do not directly receive from a pharmacy or your prescriber.

Fentanyl is a powerful synthetic opioid drug that is approximately 100 times more powerful than other Opioids. The amount of Fentanyl vary between pills, even within the same batch, no two pills are alike. A single pill might get a person high without killing them, another pill could be fatal.

The counterfeit pills are not being made by professionals, they are being made by greedy drug pushers that are taking advantage of addicts, and targeting our youth here in Southeast Indiana.

Madison wrestlers roll in state lidlifter

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Madison took advantage of Southwestern's low numbers to win eight matches by forfeit and pick up a 66-9 win in the annual Battle for the Paddles wrestling showdown in Hanover on Monday evening.

Southwestern was able to field wrestlers at just five weight classes on the night and won two of them, with a third going into the third period. But Madison won three of the contested bouts to easily retain the Paddles in the match between the two county rivals.

"It was a real solid win for us," Madison coach Tyson Skinner said. "Some of our big guns didn't wrestle tonight, but it was really nice to see some of our other wrestlers get some mat time and do well. And even in losses, they were able to compete."

The best match of the night came at 126 pounds — one of Southwestern's two wins on the evening — when veteran Keegan Gross held off a determined Eli Stuart to claim a 15-9 win for the Rebels. Southwestern's other victory was in the match just before that when Eli Weatherbee pinned the Cubs' Jake Dyer in 42 seconds.

"They're two of my more seasoned wrestlers so I kind of expect quite a bit out of them. They're the leaders on the team," Southwestern coach Scott Gross said. "We're still a little bit out of shape. They just got out of cross country season and I think we could have been a little more well-rounded, but it's early."

Each of Madison's three wins in contested bouts came via pin/fall with Brayden Richards pinning Aiden Smith in 28 seconds at 160 pounds, Cameron Wall pinning Cain Weatherbee in 52 seconds at 170, and Travon Resendiz finally pinning Zack Brown in 3:03 in a tough battle at 182.

Other than the 138 bout, which was a double-forfeit, all other victories by Madison came by forfeit: Isabella Schatzman (106 pounds), Jamea Perry (113), Trenton Bivens (138), Emmett Wilhite (145), Noah Burkhardt (152), Van Skinner (195), Drake Youngblood (220) and Brayden Brewer (285).

Undefeated North Decatur pulls away in 2nd half to beat Southwestern, 42-34

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Southwestern girls basketball played one of its best halves of the season and found itself locked in a tie at halftime with undefeated North Decatur Tuesday at home.

But the offensive inconsistencies that have plagued the Rebels all season resurfaced in the second half and, combined with foul trouble, led to a 42-34 loss to the Chargers in a matchup of potential sectional foes.

For Southwestern coach Brian Crank, it was the same story he has seen all season.

While he was thrilled with his team's effort and defense, he knows the Rebels have to get more consistent on offense if they want to have any chance to compete.

"I told them that we're the hardest working 1-4 team in the state," Crank said. "We're right there. It's tough but we don't want to give up. We need to keep grinding because we're right there. We've just got to put the ball in the basket."

Southwestern (1-4) didn't score a lot in the first half but neither did North Decatur. Both defenses controlled the game and they went into the locker room tied 20-20.

But while the Chargers (6-0) figured out their offensive woes in the second half, Southwestern continued to struggle.

With senior Kylie Eccles sitting on the bench after picking up her fourth foul early in the third, the Rebels didn't have the horses to keep up as North Decatur opened the half on a 14-1 run to gain some breathing room.

Southwestern's Kylie Eccles (2) and Riley Scroggins battle for a rebound with North Decatur's Madelyn Bohman (40) during Tuesday's game in Hanover.

Southwestern got down by 13, but the Rebels didn't buckle. They fought back to close the gap to nine (36-27) by the end of the third and stayed under double-digits throughout most of the fourth.

A pair of Ashley Fulton free throws with 41 seconds left cut the lead to seven (41-34) and a steal gave the Rebels possession, but they were unable to get any closer.

Overall, Southwestern shot just 21% (9-of-44) from the floor, including 2-of-11 from 3-point range.

The Rebels' most effective offense came at the free-throw line where they were 14-of-20 on the night.

"It's not one person. Each night it's somebody else. This one fixes it and this one falls back," Crank said of the offense. "But through it all, we're head and shoulders better than we were three weeks ago and we're still ahead of where I thought we were going to be at this time. We're getting better each time out."

Fulton finished with 11 points and five rebounds to lead Southwestern while Trinity McLain had 10 points and seven rebounds.

Emily Hatton and Riley Scroggins each scored four points, Emma Long had three, and Eccles scored two.

Madelyn Bohman had 12 points to lead North Decatur, which shot just 28% (12-of-43) for the game, but held a 42-35 rebounding edge.

Both teams also had a ton of turnovers with the Rebels committing 21 and the Chargers 23.

Southwestern heads to South Dearborn on Saturday and then hosts Madison next Wednesday evening in the annual Turkey Shootout.

LADY CUBS WIN 3RD STRAIGHT

Madison girls basketball defeated South Dearborn 51-39 in Aurora on Tuesday for the Cubs' third-straight win.

Madison, now 3-2, heads to Salem on Saturday and then travels to Southwestern next Wednesday for the annual Turkey Shootout.

Rebels swimmers open season at New Albany

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Southwestern's girls swim team opened the 2021-22 season with a dual meet at New Albany on Saturday afternoon.

The Rebels lost 113-53 but picked up three wins, including two by senior Julia Worcester and two by freshman Raygan Crawford in her first high school meet.

"I felt good about our first meet on Saturday. We had top three finishes in each event including four first places," Southwestern coach Jay Crawford said. "The majority of our team participated in a fall sport so they arrived in good shape. However, they are still getting into 'swim' shape. I am excited to see our progression over the coming weeks."

Worcester won the 200-yard freestyle in 2:16.84 and the 100 backstroke in 1:12.06 while Raygan Crawford won the 200 individual medley in 3:18.28 and the 100 freestyle in 1:02.37.

Other top results for the Rebels were: Amiah Owen, Worcester, Crawford and Audrey Bare, second, 200 medley relay, 2:18.63; Bare, Larissa Garcia, Leni Konzack and Paula Romero-Loza, second, 200 free relay, 2:39.44; Bare, third, 50 free, 35.13; Owen, third, 100 fly, 1:28.41 and third, 100 breast, 1:40.65; Fabiana Orioli, third, 500 free, 7:02.48; and Crawford, Orioli, Worcester and Owen, third, 400 free relay, 4:30.90.

Southwestern returns to action on Tuesday, Nov. 30 when the Rebels travel to Madison.

Knicks smother Pacers to 2 baskets in 4th quarter, win 92-84

BY BRIAN MAHONEY
AP BASKETBALL WRITER

NEW YORK — The New York Knicks were clearly not going to shoot their way out of their slump.

With most of their starters struggling, it was going to have to be done with defense — just the way they like it.

"This is how we win games," All-Star forward Julius Randle said.

Immanuel Quickley came off the bench to score 16 points, and the Knicks limited the Indiana Pacers to two baskets in the fourth quarter to rally for a 92-84 victory on Monday night.

Kemba Walker also had 16 points for the Knicks, but he didn't play in the fourth when the reserves and especially the defense won it for New York. Derrick Rose, Walker's backup, added 14 points.

The Knicks ended a three-game home losing streak and a two-game skid overall by outscoring the Pacers 23-10 in the final 12 minutes.

"It's kind of like '90s-style basketball. You've got to go out there and fight," veteran center Taj Gibson said. "It's kind of like a playoff game the way we were playing tonight."

Indiana shot 2 for 20 in the fourth period.

Malcolm Brogdon had 22 points, eight rebounds and seven assists for the Pacers, who had won two in a row. Domantas Sabonis added 21 points and 15 rebounds, while Caris LeVert scored 17.

The Knicks trailed 74-69 after three quarters before Quickley tied it with the first five points of the fourth. Indiana went back up 82-79 before the Knicks surged ahead with an 8-0 run, with Quickley making a 3-pointer before Rose followed with a basket and an assist on RJ Barrett's dunk. The Pacers didn't have another basket after Brogdon scored with 7:06 to play.

"Their aggression made it tough on us. I think we had some good looks that didn't go down and we had others that were not good and we were up against the shot clock a couple times," Pacers coach Rick Carlisle said. "And this place can turn into a frenzied place, so we've just got to do a better job of executing."

The Pacers beat the Knicks 111-98 on Nov. 3 behind 25 points from Myles Turner, who made a career-best seven 3-pointers. He had just three points Monday.

Indiana played without rookie Chris Duarte, who had started every game, because of a right shoulder injury.

When Walker checked out for the first time midway through the first quarter, he was 4 for 5 and the rest of the Knicks were 0 for 8. The Pacers led 20-16 after the teams combined to miss 17 of 18 3-point attempts.

Both squads heated up in the second, with the Knicks hitting 54% of their shots and the Pacers taking a 49-48 edge to halftime after closing 3-pointers by Brogdon and Sabonis.

Walker's basket gave the Knicks a 52-51 lead early in the third before the Pacers ran off 13 straight points, opening a 64-52 advantage on Turner's 3-pointer with 7:50 remaining in the period.

TIP-INS

Pacers: Justin Holiday started in place of Duarte, whom Carlisle believes was originally hurt in a victory over San Antonio on Nov. 1. Carlisle said the Pacers hope the guard will be available for their next game Wednesday.

Knicks: Barrett finished with 12 points after missing his first six shots. Randle shot 5 for 15 but had 11 points and 11 rebounds. ... Starting C Mitchell Robinson played just 16 minutes before leaving with a sore left ankle. Backup big man Nerlens Noel (sprained right knee) sat out again and has played in just four games.

THINGS CAN ONLY GET BETTER

The Knicks were 0 for 9 from 3-point range in the first quarter. The Pacers were 1 for 9 with two airballs.

REMEMBERING THEY WERE RIVALS

Carlisle believed one of the reasons the Pacers were so sharp in their first meeting with the Knicks was their veteran players viewed it as an important game, knowing the teams had a fierce rivalry in the 1990s.

"Our core guys are in their mid-to-late 20s. They were alive back then and many of them followed basketball. They know who Patrick Ewing and Reggie Miller are and those kinds of things," Carlisle said. "And when you come to New York to play here, this is a big deal. This is Gotham."

No. 4 Indiana uses big run at end of half to rout Norfolk State, 72-42

BY EVAN GERIKE
ASSOCIATED PRESS

BLOOMINGTON — Indiana overcame a slow start and used a big run before halftime to put away Norfolk State.

Mackenzie Holmes and Aleksa Gulbe each scored 22 points to help the No. 4 Hoosiers rout Norfolk State 72-42 on Tuesday night.

"We needed something like that," head coach Teri Moren said in a postgame press conference. "Just to go on a little bit of a run and feel good about ourselves offensively."

Holmes, who was named the Big Ten Player of the Week on Monday, scored 18 of her points in the first half.

The Hoosiers (3-0) only led 22-21 in the second quarter before they scored the final 17 points of the half to go into the break up 18.

Gulbe added 12 rebounds as well for her first double-double of the season.

"Hopefully it's gonna be the first of many," Moren said of Gulbe. "That's what I challenged her with. What she really provides for us is, she's a terrific defender off the ball and I thought she was all over the boards tonight."

Norfolk State (2-2) was led by Deja Frances, who scored 12 points for the losing Spartans. Norfolk State shot just 25% from the field.

Indiana had 22 assists on 27 field goals as a team.

Holmes said the team aims to have 17 assists each game and credited their chemistry for its ability to share the scoring.

"It's like Coach Moren says, sharing the sugar," Holmes said. "That's always a point of emphasis everytime we step on the floor."

POLL IMPLICATIONS

Indiana reached a new program-high ranking at No. 4, but Moren was worried her team might still be riding off its victory over Kentucky.

"One of the worries you have as a coach after such an emotional win is that your team comes back and they're a little flat," Moren said. "Not that they overlook anybody, I just thought they were a little flat tonight."

BIG PICTURE

Norfolk State: The Spartans struggled against their second consecutive Big Ten opponent after losing by 40 to No. 21 Ohio State on Sunday afternoon.

Indiana: The Hoosiers followed up their win over No. 19 Kentucky with a slow start but picked up the pace late in the second quarter and in the second half.

STAT OF THE NIGHT

Indiana committed 22 turnovers but only allowed 23 points off them.

Moren said the team wants to keep that number under 11 and said the team has work to do to get there.

Reich wants Indy to use lessons learned for playoff run

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Indianapolis coach Frank Reich wasted no time looking ahead after Sunday's victory over Jacksonville.

He challenged the Colts to use the lessons they learned from winning four of their last five to propel them into the playoffs, and make a deeper run than most expect.

Reich believes it's not just possible, it's plausible.

"There are a lot of good teams in the AFC, but no one's just taken over, so why can't it be us?" he said. "Why can't the Indianapolis Colts take over right now? That's our mindset. If we're going to do it, we've got to prove it this weekend in Buffalo against a very good football team."

Sure, Indianapolis faces an uphill climb after getting to .500 for the first time this season. But the reality is the AFC is wide open.

While the Bills and Kansas City Chiefs started this season as conference favorites, Tennessee (8-2) has emerged as the top team through 10 weeks.

The Titans hold a three-game lead over Indy in the AFC South and have swept the Colts in the season series, essentially making it a four-game difference.

Beyond Tennessee, it's anybody's guess.

Nine teams are within two games of Buffalo and Baltimore, both 6-3, including the Colts, who can cut the gap in half with a win on the Bills' home turf.

Indy's schedule won't help.

The Colts host defending Super Bowl champion Tampa Bay in two weeks, the resurgent New England Patriots after a Week 14 bye, and then play Christmas night at NFC West-leading Arizona.

Still, they've faced longer odds. After starting 0-3, just getting back into the playoff conversation was a major feat.

Now there's a growing sense inside the locker room that the improving Colts are building the kind of momentum that could lead them to another fantastic finish.

"I think we've shown some really, really bright spots of how well we can play together," center Ryan Kelly said. "Great teams in November, December, they put those games together. I think we're heading in the right direction."

WHAT'S WORKING

Turnovers. At training camp, the Colts made one goal clear: 40 takeaways this season.

Through 10 games, they're No. 2 in the league with 21 and Sunday's fumble recovery with 50 seconds left sealed the win.

WHAT NEEDS HELP

Finishing touches. The arduous journey back to .500 could have been easier had Indy developed a knockout punch.

It blew fourth-quarter leads against the Los Angeles Rams and Baltimore Ravens, losing both, and also lost in overtime against Tennessee.

On Sunday, the Colts even let the Jags hang around after taking a 17-0 first-quarter lead.

STOCK UP

Jonathan Taylor. The second-year running back has become the key to Indy's offense.

He's tied with the injured Derrick Henry for the league lead in yards rushing (937).

And if he has another game with 100 yards from scrimmage and a TD, he'll tie LaDainian Tomlinson and Lydell Mitchell for the longest such streak in the Super Bowl era (eight).

STOCK DOWN

T.Y. Hilton. Injuries have limited the 32-year-old, four-time Pro Bowl receiver to three games.

He returned Sunday after clearing the concussion protocol but had only one reception for 5 yards.

Hilton has caught half of his 14 targets this season for 101 yards and no touchdowns.

INJURIES

All-Pro left guard Quenton Nelson and two-time All-Pro linebacker Darius Leonard left the game briefly with what appeared to be ankle injuries. But both finished the game and Reich said he expected Nelson would play at Buffalo. Reich said he had not yet spoken with Leonard.

KEY NUMBER

7 — With seven playoff spots available and seven games remaining on the schedule, Indy is one of seven five-win teams in the AFC trying to position itself for a postseason trip.

NEXT STEPS

Sure, getting to .500 is a big deal. But if the Colts want to make the playoffs for the second straight season and the third time in four years, they'll likely need a winning record.

A win at Buffalo, in potentially nasty November weather, would be a major leap forward.

No. 6 Purdue dominates middle to take down Wright State

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WEST LAFAYETTE — Purdue forward Trevion Williams used a milestone moment to show off all of his skills Tuesday night.

He delivered the usual highlight dunks, strong rebounds and jarring screens. He also made a nifty behind-the-back pass, took a defender off the dribble, showed he could hit some jumpers and even threw in a couple of dance moves as he celebrated.

Williams finished with 20 points and 13 rebounds, helping the sixth-ranked Boilermakers blow out Wright State 96-52 on a night he became the 16th player in school history with 1,000 points and 650 rebounds.

"That was never my mindset," Williams said. "I just wanted to be a part of something special, I wanted to win. But I knew I couldn't do that without making some sacrifices and getting my body in shape."

By trimming weight and working on his athleticism, the preseason All-American has become one of the nation's most challenging matchups though he's been coming off the bench this season.

And with 7-foot-4 center Zach Edey and 6-10 true freshman Caleb Furst also playing well, the Boilermakers have exploited an even bigger advantage in the post than they have over the last decade. So far, nobody has found a solution for Purdue's big three, certainly not the undermanned Raiders (1-2).

Edey had 18 points and 12 rebounds while Furst added 14 points and 10 rebounds. Purdue is off to its first 3-0 start in three seasons and shot better than 50% for the third straight game, its longest streak since December 2000.

The defending Horizon League regular-season champs were led by Trey Calvin with 21 points and Tanner Holden with 17. But any chance they had of staying close evaporated quickly with Edey and Williams patrolling the middle.

"It's a good team from the perimeter, a good team inside. I think a lot of teams are going to struggle to stop them this year," Wright State coach Scott Nagy said.

Edey helped Purdue take control quickly by breaking to a 14-3 lead. Then Williams got going with back-to-back three-point plays and Edey's layup capped a 14-0 run that extended the margin to 33-10.

Wright State never recovered. It gave up the final eight points of the first half, falling into a 51-17 deficit and trailed by as much as 49.

"You get Zach Edey beating on you for four or five minutes and you want a break and then here comes Trevion," coach Matt Painter said. "He (Williams) was so good finishing games for us last year. He's just been great for us this year."

BIG PICTURE

Wright State: Ten players returned from last season's title team but it didn't look like a conference contender Tuesday.

The Raiders struggled against Purdue's size, strength and speed.

Of course, not many Division I teams are built like Purdue, so better days lie ahead for the Raiders.

Purdue: Painter's team has thrived in these first three games, shooting 50% or better from the field in all three — their longest streak since a four-game stretch in February and March 2018.

With two NCAA Tournament contenders up next, the Boilermakers soon will find out where they actually stand.

STAT PACK

Wright State: Grant Basile had seven points after scoring a career-high 37 in Friday's loss at Marshall. ... The Raiders were outrebounded 56-23 and outscored in the paint 46-16. ... This was the first meeting between the two schools. ... The Raiders' career scoring leader, Bill Edwards, is the father of former Purdue star Vince Edwards.

Purdue: Brandon Newman and Sasha Stefanovic combined for nine baskets — all 3-pointers. Newman finished with 15 points. Stefnovic had 12. ... Williams also had three assists and two blocks. ... Purdue improved to 35-1 at home all-time against current Horizon League schools.

Engstler leads No. 10 Louisville in 82-25 rout of Bellarmine

BY STEVE BITTENBENDER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Emily Engstler scored 12 points and grabbed 14 rebounds for No. 10 Louisville, which earned its first victory of the season in an 82-25 rout over Bellarmine on Tuesday night.

The Cardinals (1-1) never trailed in the contest and put the game away early thanks to a 13-0 run midway through the first quarter that let them build a 24-7 lead with 2:21 left in the period.

The lead would grow throughout the first half to a 48-14 halftime lead. By then, Engstler, a Syracuse transfer, already had her first double-double (12 points and 10 rebounds).

After shooting just 28.6% against Arizona in 61-59 season-opening loss Friday, the Cardinals found their stroke on their homecourt. They shot 52.9% on Tuesday, with 12 of the 13 players scoring.

Hailey Van Lith added 11 points for Louisville. Junior Norika Konno matched her career-high with 11, and senior Ahlana Smith added 10, her best performance in her two seasons at Louisville.

The Knights (0-2) shot just 14.9% against their crosstown rivals.

At one point, Bellarmine missed 17 of 18 shots over a nearly 14-minute stretch that included the entire third quarter.

Kathleen Scott led Bellarmine with six points.

BIG PICTURE

Bellarmine: A second-year Division I school, the Knights could not compete against either Louisville's quickness or size. Bellarmine committed 29 turnovers and was outrebounded 54-24.

Louisville: In putting on a defensive clinic against the Knights, the Cardinals kept the intensity up even as the game was well under control.

It won't produce those kinds of results every night, but it will definitely be a reason why Louisville can make a run come March.

Seton Hall hits FTs late, stuns No. 4 Michigan

BY LARRY LAGE
ASSOCIATED PRESS

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — Seton Hall pulled off one of its biggest wins in school history and coach Kevin Willard simply shrugged his shoulders because he was not surprised by the result.

Jared Rhoden scored 16 points, helping the Pirates rally to beat No. 4 Michigan 67-65 on Tuesday night.

It was Seton Hall's first win on the road over a nonconference team ranked among the top five, and its first victory against a top-five team since knocking off Temple in the second round of the 2000 NCAA Tournament.

"This is where we are as a program," said Willard, who is in his 12th season with the Pirates. "I expected us to win this game. This wasn't a shock to me.

"We can play anybody in the country and we've done that in the last seven years."

Willard led Seton Hall to four straight NCAA Tournament appearances from 2016 to 2019 before the pandemic ended a potentially promising run two years ago and a COVID-19 outbreak stunted his team last season.

The Wolverines (2-1) had a chance to extend the game with 0.8 seconds left, but Terrance Williams missed the first of two free throws.

Unlike the 1989 national championship game in which Rumeal Robinson made free throws to seal a victory for Michigan over Seton Hall, the maize and blue didn't follow the same script.

"I've watched the game like five times," Willard said. "It was a phenomenal game. It was like this, a really, really good basketball game."

The Pirates (3-0) trailed by 11 points early in the second half and took the lead with 1:15 left for the first time since late in the first half.

"There were a lot of mistakes made defensively throughout 40 minutes of play," Michigan coach Juwan Howard said.

Bryce Aiken made two free throws with 32 seconds left, giving Seton Hall a 65-64 lead that it kept after Michigan's Eli Brooks missed a short shot on the ensuing possession.

CFP top 4 unchanged: Georgia, Alabama, Oregon and Ohio State

BY RALPH D. RUSSO
AP COLLEGE FOOTBALL WRITER

Georgia, Alabama, Oregon and Ohio State held their places in the College Football Playoff ranking Tuesday, with Cincinnati still sitting at fifth.

There was no movement in the selection committee's top seven after all those teams won last week. Michigan was still No. 6 and Michigan State seventh, heading into the Spartans' big game Saturday at Ohio State.

Notre Dame moved up a spot to eighth. Oklahoma State (9-1) is now the highest-ranked Big 12 team at ninth after Oklahoma was handed its first loss last week.

Wake Forest (9-1) is No. 10, the highest-ranked team from the Atlantic Coast Conference with three rankings left until selection Sunday.

In the seven-year history of the College Football Playoff, no team has come from farther back than ninth to reach the final four with two rankings remaining before selection Sunday. Michigan State did that in 2015, propelled by a victory at Ohio State.

Oklahoma was the one top-10 team to lose this past weekend and the Sooners fell to 13th.

Notable for Cincinnati, which is trying to become the first team from outside the Power Five conferences to make the playoff, was Houston moving into the rankings at 24th.

The Cougars have already clinched a spot in the American Athletic Conference championship game, where the Bearcats could be an opponent if they keep winning.

"When I talk about how firm (Cincinnati's) position is, this week it's rock-solid at No. 5," selection committee chairman and Iowa athletic director Gary Barta.

The Bearcats' only victory against a team ranked in the selection committee's top 25 is Notre Dame (9-1). They host SMU (8-2) on Saturday and then go to East Carolina (6-4) on the Friday after Thanksgiving.

opener for both squads, it also the first high school match anywhere in the state of Indiana, a fact that IndianaMat.com tweeted before the contest. Skinner said his team was thrilled to get a chance to kick off the wrestling season.

"So I guess that means we're ranked number one and have the best record in the state. Everybody should be ranked number one in their weight class," Skinner said with a smile. "It's a neat thing and that's why we wanted to do this match on Monday so we could have a stake to that claim being the first actual meet opening the whole wrestling season of the entire state. It's pretty cool."

Both teams return to action on Friday when they head to Switzerland County for a quad meet in Vevay. Madison then hits the road Saturday morning at Bedford North Lawrence for a six-way meet. Southwestern will also compete on Saturday in a four-way meet at Scottsburg.

Madison then travels to Providence for a dual meet Tuesday. Southwestern's next meet after this weekend will be Dec. 3-4 in the Fugate Invitational at Scottsburg.
